DESCRIPTION

Corner daybed designed by Charlotte Perriand for the apartments of the Résidence Nova at Les Arcs, circa 1970.

Crafted in solid pine, it features a slatted structure incorporating two large storage drawers mounted on castors and concealed behind a drop-down front panel. The design exemplifies Charlotte Perriand's commitment to functionality, offering a versatile piece of furniture capable of fulfilling multiple purposes while remaining simple in its construction.

The seat mattress and cushions are upholstered in a grey wool fabric by Nobilis. With the cushions removed, the daybed provides a sleeping surface for one person. This version also features a small side shelf.

Seat height: 17.7 in.

Provenance: Résidence Nova, Les Arcs.
