DESCRIPTION

Table lamp that can also be wall-mounted by Temde, the German-Swiss lighting manufacturer known for its use of wood, circa 1960.

The structure consists of three tall, tapered teak uprights arranged around a cylindrical diffuser in woven sisal fibre. Its elongated, pointed silhouette recalls the "rocket" forms associated with 1960s design, emphasized by the wooden uprights extending above the shade.

An integrated mounting system also allows the lamp to be used as a wall light.

Edition: Temde, Circa 1960.
