DESCRIPTION

Desk lamp made of turned wood, circa 1970, likely Swiss work.

The solid circular base supports an inclined arm composed of cylindrical articulated elements. The shade, shaped as a half-cylinder, rotates to direct the light. The entire piece is defined by rounded volumes with no sharp edges, highlighting the natural wood grain.

The construction is straightforward and functional. The lamp combines practicality with a sculptural presence typical of Alpine design from the 1970s.

Manufacturer: Swiss work, circa 1970.
