DESCRIPTION

Serving trolley attributed to architect Bernard Taillefer, circa 1970.

Made of solid pine, it features a structure composed of four rectangular uprights with rounded edges, connected by two superimposed shelves made from broad wooden planks. The upper shelf is slightly framed by the uprights, which extend above its surface.

Mounted on four castors, the trolley combines robust construction with a simple and functional design characteristic of furniture developed for mountain interiors during the 1970s.

France, circa 1970.
