DESCRIPTION

Chair with a cast aluminium shell designed by Pierre Guariche for Steiner around 1953.

This model, emblematic of postwar French design, features a single-piece cast aluminium seat that is both light and ergonomic, set on a black lacquered tubular metal base. Its side opening and fluid lines reflect Guariche's commitment to technical innovation and accessible industrial design.

The piece exemplifies Pierre Guariche's balance between comfort, rationality, and modern aesthetics, central to his collaboration with the Steiner manufacturer.

Manufacturer: Steiner, circa 1953.
