

Titos Apostos Table by Philippe Starck for Aleph Driade, 1984
Philippe Starck

Sold

REF: 6227

Height: 73 cm (28.7")

Diameter: 86 cm (33.9")

DESCRIPTION

Coffee table envisioned by Philippe Starck in the 1980s. During this period, Starck was profoundly influenced by Philip K. Dick's science fiction masterpiece "Ubik," drawing inspiration from its narrative to craft a furniture collection.

Its daring design, characterized by sleek legs reminiscent of a gun, evokes the essence of the novel's titular character, Titos Apostos. Not only visually striking, but also highly practical, the table features a foldable design for effortless storage. Available in a variety of colors, it is showcased here in golden lacquered steel, epitomizing its iconic status.

Manufacturer : Driade, circa 1984. Out of production.